

PLEASE UNDERSTAND. WE ARE NOT A SHELTER.

Animal rescues and animal shelters serve to protect unhoused animals.
RESCUES are volunteer-run, are typically foster-based and operate mostly on donations.
The majority of SHELTERS are run by paid staff in taxpayer-funded buildings & kennels.

The difference between a [dog] rescue and [dog] shelter is its funding and the adoption process.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU FIND/LOSE A PET (Houston Texas area)

Plan Ahead  BEFORE  Your Loss

- Take photos of your dog alone (to post on flyers)
- Take photos of you with your dog (often used in proving guardianship)
- BEST Lost Pet Finder Apps and Websites

Begin looking as soon as you discover your pet is missing.

Start by searching your home, both inside and out.

Walk around your neighborhood or the location your pet was noticed missing from. Call your pet's name, and bring some items that your pet is familiar with and typically responds to. These could be treats your pet likes, a noise making toy, jingling car keys, a training device like a clicker or whistle, or a collar and leash. Check routes that may be familiar to your pet such as a typical path for a walk. Enlist as many people as you can to assist in the search, particularly if they are someone your pet knows and would respond to. Bring a flashlight if it will be dark soon. Broaden your search for your lost pet.

Start checking local animal shelters for your lost pet, in person and online. Because there may be animal shelters or animal control agencies in your area that do not upload data online try to check all the local animal shelters in person at least every other day. Shelters attempt to list all impounded animals in a timely manner, however, performing an online search is not a substitute for personally visiting shelter facilities to look for your lost pet.

Advertise your lost pet.

One of the most important steps you can take is notifying the public of your lost pet. Create lost pet flyers that include the date and location your pet was lost from, pet's name, photo, color, breed, age, collar color, and any identifying characteristics. Be sure to include a phone number where you can always be reached, but for safety reasons do not include your name or address on the flyer. Try to use brightly colored paper to increase visibility.

How big an area to cover depends on the number of flyers you are able to produce, but at least a one mile radius is recommended.

Within a few days the Lost Pet Postcard service from Petharbor can get postcards with a picture and description of your pet delivered to mailboxes in the area your pet was lost. All you have to do is perform a LOST pet search on PetHarbor.com and follow the prompts.

Read how it works! → http://www.petharbor.com/LPP_FAQ.htm

Place an ad in the local newspaper(s), and check the newspapers' found ads regularly. Most importantly, don't give up. Pets can be found weeks or months after they disappear.

Begin by entering your city or zip code on the left and follow the prompts from there (Tip: The fewer items you select to search on, the more animals you will see. Keep in mind your description of the animal may differ from that of the shelter staff.) At the bottom of the results pages you can also click on the "Display Animals Registered FOUND by the Public" link to review pets that individuals have found and posted on Pet Harbor. Be sure to check back often as new animals are added every hour. It sometimes takes weeks or even months for an animal to be turned in to a shelter, particularly if someone has taken your pet into their home in hopes of finding its owner. Because there may be animal shelters or animal control agencies in your area that do not upload data to this web site, try to check all the local animal shelters in person at least every other day.

Register your lost pet with Pet Harbor. Click the Register your Lost Pet link located at the bottom of the results page (directly under the "Display Animals FOUND by the Public"). Complete the form and you will receive e-mails when pets matching your description arrive at one of the shelters you selected or are entered as a found pet by an individual. If the shelters you selected have supplied us with an appropriate e-mail address your lost pet information will be forwarded to them as well.

Take an animal you found to any veterinary office to scan for a microchip.

Remember - DO NOT hand over a pet you found to anyone without the proper confirmation of rightful ownership. Dog fighting is a problem in Houston and a "Free to a Good Home" or a found dog/cat is an opportunity for them. Also, be aware of "Flippers" (people who find/steal dogs and sell) are always looking for the chance to make a buck.

If your efforts are exhausted and you are unable to locate the owners, find a new home, or keep yourself, try the following:

First Option - Breed Specific Rescues:

Run an online search to get a list:

Breed specific rescues, ex. Dachshund, Husky, Doberman, Shih Tzu, etc.

Second Option - No-Kill Shelters/Rescues:

Texas Litter Control - TLC - <http://www.texaslittercontrol.org/>
Clipped Ear Cat Sanctuary - <http://www.clippedear.org/>
Feral Feline Retreat - http://www.feralfeline retreat.com/About_Us.html

Buster's Friends - <http://www.bustersfriends.org/>
Adopt A Cat Texas - <http://www.adoptacattexas.org/>

Final option - Kill Shelters:

CAP - Citizens for Animal Protection:

The Save Rate for CAP was only 48% the last time that they were honest and released their records to the public. They also have "euthanasia only" contracts with surrounding counties, meaning that they take in animals from surrounding communities and kill them for a fee. **

Houston SPCA:

The Houston SPCA's Save Rate was only 35% the last time that they were honest and released their records to the public.

We believe that their Save Rate is drastically lower than this now. **

B.A.R.C. - Bureau of Animal Regulation and Care: (Houston's animal control / city pound)

B.A.R.C.'s Save Rate was 71.52% (2015) - (50.48% in 2013) **

B.A.R.C. killed or "lost" 7,715 pets in 2015 alone - (12,596 pets in 2013) **

That is 21 pets KILLED by B.A.R.C. every single day in 2015.

Harris County Animal Control:

Harris County's Save Rate was only 36.38% in 2015 - (11% in 2012) **

Houston Humane Society:

The Houston Humane Society's Save Rate was only 11% the last time that they were honest and released their records to the public. They also have "euthanasia only" contracts with surrounding counties, meaning that they take in animals from surrounding communities and kill them for a fee. **
